listen a minute dot com advertising what is advertising is he telling the truth or is it making things look better than they really are or is it lying companies pay a lot of money for adverts some of the ads you see and glossy magazines look like art the commercials on tv look like many movies do they really change our behavior to adverts make you buy things i think some advertising is a form of lying is b m w really the ultimate driving machine like they say in the ads british airways used to say they were the world's favorite airline but hatched stop saying it because it wasn't true personally i get tired of watching ads on television they always interrupt a good program i like ads in magazines they're usually quite interesting
